

2010 Nāhelehele Dryland Forest Symposium

“Managing Human Impacts”

February 26, 2010

Outrigger Keauhou Beach Resort

9:00 am	Welcome & Introductions Ka ‘Ahahui o ka Nāhelehele
9:30 am	Scientific and cultural perspectives- dry forest plants & ecosystems Sam Gon, The Nature Conservancy
10:00 am	Climate change and its effects on the Hawaiian dry forest David Burney, National Tropical Botanical Garden
10:30 am	BREAK
10:45 am	Backyard preservation: insurance for in-situ endangered plant recovery Bruce Koebele, Ka‘ala Farm, Inc., Wai‘anae, Hawai‘i
11:15 am	The Target Seedling Concept: Growing the Right Plant for the Site Anthony Davis, College of Natural Resources, University of Idaho
11:45 pm	LUNCH
12:45 pm	Posters (dessert served in poster area)
1:15 pm	Watershed Restoration in a "Moonscape": It's all about the Plants Melora Purell, Kohala Watershed Partnership
1:45 pm	La‘i‘ōpua and its endangered plant preserves – design, concepts and the science behind it. Grant Gerrish, University of Hawai‘i
2:15 pm	Invasive weed management – don’t give up! James Leary, CTAHR Maui Agricultural Research Center
2:45 pm	BREAK
3:00 pm	Fire and invasion in Hawai‘i’s dry forests Lisa Ellsworth, University of Hawai‘i Mānoa
3:30 pm	Naio thrips: a new threat to dry forests and native landscaping plants in Hawai‘i, and its potential for biological control. Pat Conant, HI Dept of Agriculture
4:30 pm	Day over! Remind your friends of Grow Hawaiian! at Amy Greenwell Botanical Gardens on Saturday 9-2.

Mahalo nui to our sponsors:

Bishop Museum’s Amy B.H. Greenwell Ethnobotanical Garden, Hawai‘i Wildfire Management Organization, Kamehameha Schools-LAD, The Kohala Center, Leonard Bisel Associates, National Tropical Botanical Garden, and the Outrigger Keauhou Beach Hotel